published an article declaring that Jay Gould was engaged in an attempt to secure the control of the New York Associated Press, with the ultimate object of manipulating the news in accordance with his speculative interests. The Associated Press of New York is a partnership formed by the leading papers of that city, for the collection of news. It consists of the Herald, Tribune, Times, Sun, World, Express and Journal of Commerce. This Association sells its news to several of the other New York papers and to other news associations, such as the New England Association, the New York State Press Association, the Western Associated Press, and the Associated Press of California. For a number of years the New York Press Association has pursued its business with perhaps as little friction and dissatisfaction as can be expected from so complicated an undertaking. It has at times been charged with political bias during exciting election campaigns, but it has escaped the suspicion of being used for the furtherance of commercial and financial speculations, though it is easy to perceive that its opportunities in that direction are of necessity considerable. Jay Gould at present controls the Western Union Telegraph Company. He is reputed to be a speculator of unbounded audacity and enterprise. No undertaking, however vast and far-reachobtaining a monopoly of the news, which

AN IMPULSE OF HOODLUMISM. It turns out that the murderous attack recently made upon Chinese gardeners at Los Angeles was the work of two young men and two girls, who had been out together on "a tear;" and apparently had committed the slaughter of the Chinamen from an impulse of ruffianism such as frequently assails the California hoodlum, both male and female. GENERAL NOTICES.

A Reliable Medicine s like a true friend, when needed it is always of hand, and when tried it is never found wanti SARSAPARILLA and PILLS. They never deceive; they do exactly what is ciaimed for them, and they cure disease where doctors' prescriptions and all other medicines fail.

Words of Wisdom. No doctor will fail to impress his patients "that the mouth and teeth should be healthy because it receives the food and prepares it for its digestive work." Use S ZODONT, gratify your family physician, and enjoy life comfortably. o3 3tTuThS

It presented the company in its full strength as to numbers and thanks for the honor conferred. brought out several "people" who did not distinct that in the first, second and fourth acts especially attractive. The London street view and the bridge scene were notably handsome, and on one of them the curtain went up twice by demand of the audience. Mr. Grismer and Miss Davis had less effective parts than in "The Banker's Daughter," and by no means level with the abilities of cither, but they gave them for all that was in them. To Theodore Roberts fell a role which he filled admirably. It was an English dialect part, full of feeling and calling for the exercise of a high degree of artistic skill. He played it to order. Rev. Mr. Sims and Miss Young had the next best parts, and presented them as only good and conscientious stock actors can. Emma Schutz, who will be remembered as of the Juvenile Pinafore Company, filled an important part very acceptably. A small army of supernumeraries appeared in the London scenes. The play has some extravagant scenes, but they are of minor importance. As a whole, it is a play of but little pretentions to literary excellence of but little pretentions to literary excellence in the text, but probable, natural, often touching in its pictures of the woes of the homeless in the great city, vivid in its glimpses of villainy, and yet throughout chaste and free from the slightest tinge of color that we have the transfer of the slightest tinge of color that we have the transfer of the tra that would offend the taste. It embodies the story of a prodigal son, who, though repentant, is arned away from the door of me through the arts of a usurper of his birthright; becomes the victim of circum-stances that brand him as a felon; escapes from prison; falls into the hands of good Samaritans—a company of old English strolling players; suffers with his wife the pangs of starvation while in hiding, and is finally rescued from his n.isfortunes through the re-pentance of a tool of the villain who had
